

Chinese FM and African Envoys Mark Africa Day in Beijing, Pledge Stronger China-Africa Ties

Chinese Foreign Minister Wang Yi on Monday met with African diplomatic envoys in Beijing to jointly celebrate Africa Day, reaffirming China's commitment to deepening cooperation with the continent. The event was attended by ambassadors and chargés d'affaires from more than 50 African countries accredited to China, as well as representatives of the African Union in Beijing. Capital News.

China-Africa Ties: Chinese FM calls on two sides to strengthen solidarity, jointly oppose power politics

Chinese Foreign Minister Wang Yi is calling on China and Africa to enhance solidarity, jointly oppose power politics and advocate multilateralism. Wang made the remarks when meeting with African diplomatic envoys in China on Monday in Beijing. Ambassadors or charge d'affaires of more than 50 African countries to China and representatives of the African Union in China attended the meeting. CGTN.

From blueprint to brotherhood, Tanzania's AFCON stadium rises with Chinese support

Mustafa Hashim Chikawe, a 35-year-old electrical and mechanical engineer, stood on the bustling construction site of a comprehensive sports stadium in Arusha, northern Tanzania. His gaze was fixed on towering cranes as they lifted steel beams into the sky. As a father of three, Mustafa has been working here for nine months with the China Railway Construction Engineering Group (CRCEG), overseeing electrical and piping installations. Xinhua.

African Players Boost China-Africa Ties Through Football

A new book, Global China and the Global Game in Africa, shines a spotlight on African footballers in the Chinese Super League (CSL), revealing how sport is shaping Sino-African relations. Following the 1995 Bosman ruling, which enshrined freedom of movement for football players in law, African players began migrating globally. Africa.com LLC.

China eyes Africa as it shifts EV gears in face of US, EU tariffs

China is redirecting its electric vehicle (EV) strategy in the face of mounting tariffs from the US and EU, gradually pivoting from these established export markets towards emerging ones such as Africa. The Chinese ambassador to Nigeria, Yu Dunhai, revealed plans earlier this month for EV and battery plants in the West African country. This is expected to boost local industrialisation as well as help Nigeria to capitalise on its rich deposits of lithium, a critical material for EV batteries and other electronics. South China Morning Post.

China, African nations mark Africa Day together to celebrate traditional friendship: FM spokeswoman

China and African nations marked the Africa Day together on Monday to celebrate their friendship,

Foreign Ministry spokeswoman Mao Ning said at a press briefing in Beijing on Tuesday. Chinese Foreign Minister Wang Yi, also a member of the Political Bureau of the Communist Party of China Central Committee, on Monday met with African diplomatic envoys in China and celebrated the Africa Day together in Beijing. Bastillepost.

Shymkent Launches Direct Flights to China, Egypt, Germany, Hungary, and South Korea

Shymkent hosted a ceremonial launch of direct flights to China, Egypt, Germany, Hungary, and South Korea on May 26. Flights are being operated using Boeing 737 aircraft. Service to Munich and Budapest begins on May 27, with flights to Munich running twice a week on Tuesdays and Thursdays, and to Budapest on Tuesdays and Saturdays. The Astana Times.

China's CMOC Group and Glencore Differ Over DR Congo's Cobalt Export Ban

The Democratic Republic of Congo, the world's leading producer of cobalt, has imposed a four-month ban on cobalt exports in an effort to curb market oversupply and stabilize falling prices. But the move has ignited a conflict between two of the country's largest mining companies: China's CMOC and Switzerland's Glencore. China Global South Project.

Rand's remarkable recovery: How US-China trade talks are boosting South Africa's currency

South Africa's local currency, long known as one of the most volatile in the world, is on its longest winning streak this year, buoyed by positive signals of a US deal with China that could benefit exports from this country to China. As of Monday early afternoon, the rand was trading at R18.30 after having started the morning off at R18.21. This, based on Morningstar data, is among its best levels this month after it went as low as R18.19 last Tuesday. Independent Online.

Ruto's high-stakes visit to Beijing: Kenya-China ties strengthened amid global trade tensions

In a move seen as both strategic and historic, Kenyan President William Ruto has just concluded a state visit to Beijing at the invitation of Chinese President Xi Jinping — a visit that has sent ripples across global diplomatic and economic circles. The meeting, conducted in a warm and cordial atmosphere, marks a significant milestone in Kenya-China relations and comes at a time when the global trade order is undergoing profound upheaval. The Star.

Shared trust and traditions

Ma Kai couldn't have been more thrilled two weeks ago when he finally received approval for his transport license, the key to unlocking his vision for tourism in Morocco. Nine months after applying, his tourism operation Yuetu in Casablanca became one of the first Chinese-owned travel companies to obtain a license since the pandemic. "We've bought new vehicles and hired reliable drivers," says the man in his 30s, originally from Central China's Henan province. China Daily.

Trade and industry in spotlight as Mozambique strengthens cooperation with China

Mozambique and China expressed, this Monday (26), their interest in strengthening bilateral cooperation between the two countries, particularly in the sectors of trade and industry. This took place during an audience that the Minister of Foreign Affairs and Cooperation, Maria Lucas, granted to the Special Representative of the Chinese Government on African Affairs Liu Yuxi, who is in Mozambique for a three-day visit. Club of Mozambique.

If you move around in Africa, you'll find the result of China-Africa relations: Mozambique ambassador to China

If you move around in Africa, you'll find the result of China-Africa relations, Mozambique's ambassador to China Maria Gustava said during the Africa Day Celebration 2025 in an interview with China News Network. Gustava said cooperation mechanisms such as the Belt and Road Initiative (BRI) and the Forum on China-Africa Cooperation (FOCAC) have boosted bilateral trade and investment and mutual understanding. (Zhang Dongfang, Gong Weiwei) Ecns. cn.

Powering development: A comparative analysis of China's and Ghana's strategies for competitive and affordable power supply

China's ability to implement coordinated plans over long horizons contrasts with Ghana's episodic and often politicized planning process. While both countries face overcapacity risks, China manages it through industrial demand and grid exports, while Ghana's overcapacity stems from procurement inefficiencies and weak demand growth. My Joy Online.

Cote d'Ivoire official hails China's agricultural model as blueprint for sustainable growth

The agricultural development model of China serves as a source of inspiration for African nations, a senior official of Cote d'Ivoire said on Saturday. "In less than half a century, China has achieved one of the most spectacular transformations in the world to reach its current position, particularly in agricultural and agro-industrial development," said Kobenan Kouassi Adjoumani, minister of state and minister of agriculture and rural development. Xinhua.

Niger orders CNPCNP executives to leave over breach of local content rules

The Nigerien government has ordered the expulsion of all expatriates who have worked for more than four years at China National Petroleum Corporation Niger Petroleum (CNPCNP), a subsidiary of the Chinese state-owned China National Petroleum Corporation (CNPC). This decision, to be enforced by May 31, aims to reinforce the implementation of local content regulations in the oil sector, in accordance with the Labour Code and contractual obligations. Energy News.

Chadian president inaugurates China-built Olympic stadium in capital

Chadian President Mahamat Idriss Deby Itno on Friday inaugurated a 30,000-seat Olympic stadium in the capital N'Djamena, constructed and donated by China. Named the Marshal Idriss Deby Itno Olympic Stadium, the facility was hailed by the president at the launch ceremony as a tangible fruit of active cooperation between Chad and China, built on "mutual interest, reciprocal respect, and a shared vision." Xinhua.